NBES Named 2010 School of Distinction

North Bend Elementary School was recently named a 2010 Washington School of Distinction. This news was celebrated at the November 4 Snoqualmie Valley School Board meeting. A School of Distinction recognizes the 5% highest improving schools in the State of Washington. This honor is based on student achievement gains on combined reading and math scores over the past 5 years, from 2005-2010. NBE is one of 52 elementary schools awarded this year, out of 94 schools total that comprise the top 5% of K-12 schools earning the most significant gains in student achievement. North Bend Elementary Principal Jim Frazier and staff will receive this award at a special ceremony in Seattle on Dec. 2, sponsored by the Center for Educational Effectiveness and the Washington chapter of Phi Delta Kappa International. For more information on this award and a list of the other 2010 winners, visit Center for Educational Effectiveness website at www.effectiveness.org.
